Sequim Quality Inn & Suites

When asked about the photo General Manager Nancy Schade said, "The unit presented two plaques to us in appreciation of the genuine hospitality that all the hotel staff has shown them and their colleagues during their regular missions. We make their stay feel like they are at home. Because of our high standards we are able to provide them with good, quality rooms. We also make an extra effort to accommodate their needs by offering them early breakfast, faxing documents, recommending restaurants and local attractions, as well extra help on the computer. Since their schedule can change at the last minute, we do what ever we can to change their arrival/departure dates to meet their needs. Several of us have gotten to know each of these men and women on a first name basis making our connection so much more personal than a customer/client relationship. Compared to what these men and women do for our country, it is a small token for us to be able to accommodate them and strive to make them feel at home."

Nancy Schade, general manager of Quality Inn & Suites of Sequim, front left, receives a plaque from Sgt. Patty Coons and members of Commander Submarine Group Nine, behind them, in appreciation of the hospitality the hotel staff has shown them and their colleagues during their regular missions to the Olympic Peninsula. The hotel on River Road recently received a platinum award for the second consecutive year.
